The Dean's Message

October 2022 did not take a backseat to achievements, with another incredible culinary success story with a Culinary Management Graduate being recognized with a Top 30-Under-30 Award. This high-level of achievement was met by the Humber Golf team winning gold in both women's and men's divisions. Faculty also continue to reach new heights with our very own program coordinator being selected as Ametros Instructor of the Month.

Our students took advantage of the many opportunities to network with industry. Sports Management students were challenged by industry to develop a ticket sales strategy for the Toronto Argos. Insurance Management students were invited to attend an industry conference while other industry reps visited the classroom. Fashion Management programs hosted a Mix & Mingle while International Development students welcomed alumni through a virtual presentation.

The world also became a little smaller this month when a group of students participated in an international and interdisciplinary activity in Denmark. Keep reading the Dean's News for these and other success stories.

Alumni Share Success Stories Working With Operation Smile

During lockdown, Humber International Development Postgrad students, Kaitlin Waters and Mary Periera were not sure about what the future held.

When Mark Climie-Elliott, Chief Smile Officer at Operation Smile gave a virtual presentation in their Fundraising and Communications class it was clear that there was a real need in the nonprofit sector to continue to meet the demand for services, and for donor relations to keep funding coming in for critical work.

A complex mechanical sculpture made of gears, wires, and a blue crystalline structure. The sculpture features a central blue, crystalline or floral-like structure composed of many small, faceted pieces. This central piece is surrounded by various mechanical components, including brass gears, copper-colored wires, and yellow plastic or metal frames. The background is dark, making the metallic and blue elements stand out.
